- MediMate strives to take the stress out of the emergency room experience for physicians and nurses as well as family members and friends. Through wearable technology, the MediMate platform will be able to continuously record the patient's vitals in real time over the duration of their stay in the hospital. Family members, friends, and other loved ones can access this information through their mobile devices via software. This will keep loved ones at ease when they must attend to priorities and duties that require them to leave the patient in question at the hospital. Physicians, nurses, and other medical professionals can monitor the status of multiple patients on this platform through a dashboard that will display information about vitals, patient medical information, treatment options that have been administered, and general logistics about the patient's stay. Not only will this improve the patient staff interaction, it will free up time for nurses, doctors, and surgeons to focus more on patient care and less on logistics.
